Term	Definition
digitally sign	The act of generating a digital signature for a data message, which is created by: 1. Hashing the object to be signed with a one-way hash function; and 2. Encrypting (signing) the hash value with the private key component of a key pair. 3.2.1.1 Possession at registration

At registration, possession of the private key corresponding to a supplied public key is achieved when control of an approved SSCD is handed over to the applicant.

Handing control of a Central SSCD over to applicant subscriber is achieved by the process of the applicant creating the SSCD password overseen by the enrolment officer or governed by a process approved by the LAWtrust PA.

No further proof of possession is required at the time of registration.

If the process of handing over control as described in this section cannot be achieved, then the process described in section 3.2.1.2 below should be adhered to.

3. The RA or CA will then

- a. Check that the certificate is valid (not revoked, not suspended, not expired).
- b. verify the signature by decrypting the encrypted data message, and compare it to the original data message.

In all instances in which the LAWtrust AeSign CEN-SSCD RA Charter does not specifically provide for proof of possession of the private key, the onus of proving possession of the private key will fall on the Subscriber.

3.2.2 Authentication of organisation identity
